

Optimal Care of Memory-Impaired Persons: Enduring Activity

Release Date: October 1, 2017

Valid Through: September 30, 2020

Estimated Duration: 90 minutes

Access the Activity Part 1

Access the Activity Part 2

Access the Posttest/Evaluation

Learning Objectives:

- Describe rationale for early detection
- Utilize evidence-based tools to improve dementia detection and treatment
- Recognize key management priorities throughout the continuum of dementia
- Manage neuropsychiatric symptoms

Speakers:

Ericka Tung, MD

Terry Barclay, PhD, LP

Disclosure Statements:

Drs. Tung and Barclay have reported that they have no actual or potential relevant conflicts of interest in relation to this activity.

The MMA staff and other planning committee members who were involved in the development and implementation of this activity have no actual or potential relevant conflicts of interest in relation to this activity.

No commercial support was received for the development or implementation of this activity.

Receiving Credit:

To receive CME credit for this activity, complete and submit the online evaluation form and posttest, after viewing the activity. Upon successful completion of the posttest (a score of 70% is required), you will be emailed a certificate of completion within 2 weeks. You may contact the accredited provider with questions regarding this program at cme@mnmed.org. Participants must complete all necessary activity components by the above 'valid through' date to be eligible to claim CME credit.